The John Thomas Educational Consulting Group

Customized Learning and School Solutions

The new Jarod's Law School Environment Health and Safety Inspection requirements have created the need for school districts to develop new systems to ensure safe, compliant school environments.

The development of this important new operational process can be challenging for school districts with already over utilized resources and increasing responsibility and accountability.

The John Thomas Educational Consulting Group offers customized services to assist school districts with the development of a Formalized Inspection and Monitoring Process that once developed, becomes an embedded operational function of your district. These new requirements can then be regularly managed and institutionalized to enable on-going compliance.

We can assist you to:

- Identify your systemic inspection/monitoring process needs
- Write Action Plans to address your needs
- Develop customized pre-inspection check sheets for each facility and adjacent grounds
- Establish regular inspection and monitoring cycles
- Establish data collection systems including documentation forms
- Assist with the establishment of roles and responsibilities to enable compliance
- Offer Administrative guidelines and job description review and recommendation
- Provide training on developed process for identified staff and recommend and assist with other needed areas of training

Other Services Available:

- Playground Inspection
- Environmental Inspections including asbestos/radon
- Roof Inspection and Roof Plans * Offered by non-associated independent consultant

Our Core Team of Consultants

bring expertise and experience through the roles of Superintendent, Building Principal, Staff Development Specialist and Health Sanitarian and strive to provide you with customized, cost effective services.
